Rochester Rehabilitation will be hosting their second annual Employment First Conference in Western New York, focusing on employment outcomes for special populations.

This conference, presented by Wegmans, will offer workshop sessions for both human service providers and other businesses. It will feature evidenced-based, best practice models, and highlight successful partnerships between non-profit vocational employment programs and local businesses.

Keynote Speaker is Adrian Hale, native of Rochester, New York, and the Manager of Strategic Initiatives at the Greater Rochester Chamber of Commerce.

The emphasis to create jobs and employment opportunities for individuals with disabilities, veterans, individuals living in poverty and those with other disadvantages has become a priority for New York State and local leaders. In order to successfully improve employment outcomes for special populations, human service providers must continue to develop partnerships with businesses that embrace diversity and inclusion within their workforce.
